Angelica is an intellectual property specialist and patent agent trainee at Stratford Intellectual Property. She works with clients in managing IP portfolios and developing effective IP strategies tailored to suit their business needs as she undergoes comprehensive training on patent drafting and prosecution.

Driven by a desire for continuous learning, Angelica is set to effectively contribute to the intricate landscape of intellectual property as an intellectual property expert and patent agent. Despite having a background in life sciences, she is also actively involved in serving clients across various industries, expanding her expertise in providing IP-related advice on diverse technologies.
