Leah is the Patent Practice Leader of the Intellectual Property team at Stratford. She has extensive experience advising clients on patent drafting, prosecution, filing strategy, and portfolio management, with a focus on helping organizations develop strong, business-aligned IP portfolios.

Her practice includes the preparation and prosecution of patent and industrial design applications in subject matter areas including:

- Pharmaceuticals
- Biotechnology
- Agriculture and Food Science
- Medical Devices
- Oil and Gas
- Batteries and Fuel Cells
- Advanced Materials
- Consumer Products

Leah specializes in chemical and life science patents and provides tailored IP strategies for a diverse client base including multinational corporations, start-ups, universities, and individual inventors.

She also provides opinions on patentability, validity, infringement, and freedom to operate. Leah's experience as a former biotechnology researcher gives her a deep understanding of the science behind her clients' innovations and the commercial strategies needed to protect them effectively.
